

Today we are going to be looking at the front cover of a book and discussing what we can find out from it.

We can learn a lot about a book from its front cover but we can also make our own prediction about the story too.

A prediction is what you think is going to happen.

When we make a prediction we often use my favourite joining word 'because'.

Here is the front cover of this week's story.

On your activity sheet are some questions. You don't have to write answers to the first part you can discuss with the adult helping you at home.

Please write down your answer to the last question- this will be your prediction.

If you would like to write answers for every question that would be super!
